Economic Illiterates

The odds are overwhelming "that you are an economic illiterate." So writes Sylvia Porter, the well-known financial columnist. The reason for her indictment is this: "You're among the less than five per cent of all high school graduates in our land if you had even one semester course in economics."

Miss Porter recommends that economics be a required course in every high school and in the first two years of college. We live in a society which is dominated by economic considerations. As workers and consumers we make economic decisions every day of our lives. The failure of the schools in this respect must be remedied.

Six of the Best

Sydney, Australia, like many American communities, has been plagued with juvenile crime. Duck-tailed teen-agers, called bodgie-boys Down Under, have wantonly destroyed automobiles, engaged in gang wars, and beaten innocent bystanders.

Sydney's answer takes the form of a two-pronged ordinance. First, the parents must pay for the damage done by their delinquent offspring. Second, as Robert Ruark vividly phrases it, "A father must, in the presence of a police officer, apply six of the best to sonny boy's stern—with a police whip, and to the satisfaction of the attending officer."

Sydney has set a precedent that every city and town could profitably follow.

Thinking in the Corn Belt

Not many months ago there were all kinds of dire predictions—many made for obvious political reasons—that agriculture was in for a Grade-A depression unless the government took new, drastic steps in the way of aid and subsidy.

Those drastic steps were not taken. But agricultural prices have been coming back—in some cases by big percentages. For instance, hogs touched a low of $10.80 per hundred-weight last December. This June they reached $17.

Moreover, there is evidence that the prediction of disaster—and the demands for ever-more costly and extensive government aid—have been more common among non-farm than farm groups. For instance, Fortune, in its August issue, carries an article on conditions in the corn belt. It quotes from interviews with representative farmers. One, a young farmer who depends largely on hogs, expressed approval of Secretary Benson's refusal to put a floor under hog prices, adding: "We were in a bad predicament, but the only way to cure it was to let things get rough enough to get the boys to cure it themselves by breeding fewer sows." Another farmer pointed out that government guarantees would mean government dictation of his operations. A third hog producer, who was farming in the days when little pigs were being killed, said he was against controls because "people who have tasted freedom shouldn't turn back from it."

A majority of livestock men seem to hold views such as this. The country can be proud of such farmers.

"Progression"—But Not Progress

We have a progressive federal income tax—which simply means that the more taxable income a man has, the higher the tax rate becomes.

Our income tax has also proven "progressive" in still another way.

When the tax first went into effect, a Citizen Public Expenditures Survey reminds us, the highest rate was six per cent—and that applied only to taxable incomes in excess of $500,000.

By 1941, the lowest rate had risen to the six per cent level.

Today the lowest rate is 20 per cent on the first $2,000 of taxable income—and from there the rates "progress" to a high of 91 per cent, which is just nine per cent short of confiscation.

The federal income tax, moreover, is just one of the multitude of taxes we pay. On top of it come social security taxes, excise taxes, state income taxes, school taxes, sales taxes, cigarette taxes, property taxes—and so on ad infinitum. The Survey shows just what this pyramided tax structure does to people of comparatively small means. Take a man who works a 40-hour week and gets $86 in return for his labors. He works 13 hours and 20 minutes to pay his taxes—as against eight hours to pay for his food, two hours and 35 minutes for clothing, and eight hours and 35 minutes for shelter.

This is "progression" all right—but certainly isn't progress. We are, in effect, devoting a third or more of our working time to just supporting government. Where will we go from here?

Catch the Rain Where It Falls

Nowadays millions of people think of flood control as something that requires huge multipurpose dams costing an incredible sum of tax money.

The truth is that big-scale flood control, in case after case, can be better effected at vastly lower cost, by small upstream dams.

This story was recently told in a National Municipal Review article by Peter Farb. Mr. Farb dealt with what has been done on a stream in western Oklahoma which formerly suffered an average of nine floods per year. The soil Conservation Service—with only pennies to spend where the big dam groups spend dollars—solved the problem by the upstream approach. Of this, Mr. Farb writes, "The upstream approach is as different from the big-dam approach as earth is from concrete. While SCS diminishes floods by trapping water up stream, and thus minimizes downstream flood conditions, the Army Engineers try to control already-swollen rivers." The upstream dams, he adds, are each about 1/2000th the size of a typical big-dam built by the engineers, and the cost is comparably less.

The whole theory of upstream flood prevention can be expressed in a phrase—catch the raindrops where they fall. It is sound, it works, and it is relatively inexpensive.

Why, then, has there been so much propaganda for the multi-hundred-million dollar big dams? One reason is that these dams also produce power—and their construction is devoutly desired by those who want to see a tax-subsidized, socialized, federal electric power monopoly established in this country.

car Finkel gave a stork shower at the Finkel home for Mrs. John Strelcher of Waukegan Wednesday evening. Twenty-five guests were present.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hallada and two children of Port Washington arrived at the H. A. Tillotson home Saturday afternoon for a visit. Mr. Hallada is on his vacation this week.

Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gerber and family of Antioch and Lt. and Mrs. Russell Hunter and children of Great Lakes and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hunter held a birthday celebration at the Eddie Van Patten home in honor of Mrs. Wilbur Hunter's 67th birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McNeil left on Monday on a business trip to Denver, Colo.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Leable accompanied Mrs. Lois Singletary and daughter, Nancy, of Zion to the Pentecostal Church in Kenosha Tuesday evening. After the services they called at the George McNeil home in Kenosha.

Thursday evening callers at the William Richards home were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Adrian of Kenosha. Sunday afternoon callers were Mr. and Mrs. John Delany of Kenosha.

Mrs. Lucy Nellis of Russell visited at the home of her grandson, Clifford Crittenden, on Saturday. In the afternoon she called on Mr. and Mrs. Fred Leable.

Miss Ida May Stienk of Zion spent the week-end at the William Richards home.

HEALTH TALK

DO YOUR FEET HURT?

If your feet ache, you ache all over. This observation has been said many times, and it's true. Tired, aching feet affect the body in many ways, chiefly headache, backache, and a sour, irritable disposition. The Educational Committee of the Illinois State Medical Society points out in "Health Talk."

While not a seasonal affliction, the trouble comes to the forefront in warm weather. Hot, humid temperature causes the feet to swell in some persons. Consequently, additional pressure is placed on sensitive spots, such as corns, callouses, bunions, and ingrown toenails.

In persons who perspire more in warm weather, there is greater danger of skin irritation. Hot weather promotes bacterial growth, particularly in the fungi called ringworm. The infection begins with tiny red nodules which subsequently enlarge and spread in patch-like fashion. There is scalliness and itching.

Improperly fitting footwear causes corns, callouses, bunions and ingrown toenails, all of which, when neglected produce pain. When the shoes and hosiery produce a friction on the toes and soles of the feet callouses and corns result. Overgrowth of bones frequently place an abnormal pressure on the skin with the same result. Other factors are high heels, which throw the body weight out of proportion, pointed to and narrow lasts in shoes.

Very often painful conditions of the feet develop because of faulty bone formation, or uneven weight distribution. The use of an arch support sometimes is helpful.

Ingrown toenails create discomfort. They usually come from tight and pointed shoes. They also come from a style consciousness in foot care, since women in particular think the cosmetic effect is enhanced by having the nails oval shaped. This forces the nail to become imbedded in the fleshy tissue; infection is apt to result. The nails should be cut straight across, even with the tip of the fleshy end of the toe. This will keep the nail from curving downward into the flesh.

Tight, short and ill-fitting shoes push the bony structures of the foot out of place. Over a period of time, the pressure causes bunions. These protrusions are unsightly as well as painful. Surgery is frequently required to correct these deformities. The feet should be kept clean. A brush will do much to stimulate the blood circulation and remove the dried particles of skin that are constantly being sluffed off, freeing the area from possible infection by bacterial growth. Immersion of the feet alternately into warm and cold water has a refreshing effect. Massaging the skin with cream or a dusting powder and changing frequently into a different pair of shoes are also comforting.

These are practical hints to good foot care. However, unless some congenital abnormality exists, conditions can be prevented by selecting comfortable and adequate sizes in footwear. You might be in style, but you can't wear a smile if your feet hurt.

The groom's attendants were Larry Inglis, of Zion, a fraternity brother of the groom, and Jerry Quilty, of Antioch.

The Rev. P. Henry Matimore officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A wedding breakfast was held at the Spinning Wheel in Hinsdale, at 12:30 p. m. and a reception was held in the evening at the home of the bride's parents.

Explorer Scout Post 92 To Hold Reorganization Meeting Next Wednesday

Explorer Post 92 will hold a reorganization meeting at 7:30 Wednesday evening, Sept. 5. All boys 14 years of age or older are invited to attend.

Although exploring is a division of the Boy Scouts of America, no previous experience in scouting is required for membership.

The success of the exploring program depends on the boys. They plan and carry out the program themselves with the aid and advice of experienced leaders. Naturally, the more boys the post has, the more varied the program will be and everyone will have more fun.

Explorer Post 92 has a committee composed of some of the community's most prominent citizens and well trained leaders with long and varied experience in scouting.

If you are a boy 14 years of age or older and are even slightly interested in being a member of and in helping to run an organization which has served America for almost 50 years, come to the Antioch Scout Home next Wednesday evening. You are sure to return home to look forward to a future in which you will have unlimited adventure and will render invaluable service to your community. Some of the happiest and proudest boys in America today are Explorer Scouts.

H. J. Litchfield Attends School of Banking at University of Wisconsin

MADISON, WIS. — Herbert J. Litchfield, State Bank, Antioch, Ill., is among the 1,048 students from 39 states who are now attending the annual two-week residence session at the School of Banking at the University of Wisconsin here.

The school, sponsored by the Central States Conference consisting of the bankers associations of 16 states, requires residence attendance for two weeks each year for three years for graduation. A total of 261 seniors from 27 states will receive their diplomas at the school's 1956 graduation exercises Friday night, Aug. 31. The School of Banking is one of the many schools, short courses, and conferences sponsored annually at the University of Wisconsin as educational services for all citizens.

Attendance at the 1956 School of Banking enables its students at Wisconsin's State university not only to meet a large number of bankers from all over the country, but they also have the opportunity of hearing the school's distinguished lecturers, over 100 experts from all parts of the nation, who are recognized authorities in banking, economics, law and industrial, and agricultural and financial problems.

Fishing Off Bridge at Channel Lake Roadway Is Called Traffic Hazard

When a youth was struck by a car and slightly injured at the Lake St. bridge in Channel Lake Sunday, Capt. Herman Holbek made complaint to Sheriff Stanley Christian that the bridge is a hazard in view of the fact that it is used by fishermen in violation of the law.

The bridge provides one way traffic because of its narrowness. Despite the fact that a sign announces no fishing from the bridge, Holbek said that 23 men and boys were seen fishing there Sunday.

Told of the law and ordered off the bridge they continued to return. The boy was said to have stepped back from the railing just as the car crossed the bridge and was brushed by it. The Antioch Rescue Squad was called to give first aid.

Capt. Holbek said that the sheriff will instruct his men to make arrests if there are further violations.

D. H. Noddins Married Half Century Ago

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Noddin of Prospect ave., Channel Lake Bluffs will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary with open house from 2 to 5 p. m. Sunday at their home. Mr. Noddin retired June 30 from the National Office Supply Co., Waukegan. Guests will be present from Hamilton, Ont., San Francisco, Calif., Norman, Okla., and Wauwatosa, Wis., as well as from the immediate area. The Noddins have two sons, Donald M., of Kansas City, and David J., Jr., of Morton Grove.

Children Can Be Saved From Accidental Poisoning

Accidental poisoning kills more young children than polio, diphtheria and scarlet fever combined, Selwyn James reports in the September Reader's Digest. Poison Control Centers in 93 cities are now working to reduce this toll.

"Every year in the United States more than 200,000 poison victims are rushed to hospitals and doctors' offices," Mr. James writes. "The great majority are children who have swallowed common household pills, powders, pastes or fluids. Some 500 of these children die before aid reaches them, or because neither parent nor physician knows the identity of the poison in the offending substance. Thousands of others suffer injuries to the throat and stomach or develop dangerous secondary ailments like bronchial pneumonia."

Under federal law, labels on foods and drugs must warn of dangerous ingredients, but the law does not apply to many common household substances. It's important to know the chemical contents of a product swallowed by accident because first aid measures vary. If the poison is a strong acid or alkali, vomiting may burn the esophagus.

The first Poison Control Center was set up in Chicago in 1953 by a committee of the American Academy of Pediatrics working with the Chicago city health department in order to provide a quick source of information on the contents of substances not frequently swallowed by children. Manufacturers of branded products helped by disclosing secret formulas.

Chicago visiting nurses who investigated cases of poisoning referred to the center found that nine times out of ten, the accidents could have been avoided. They advise parents to make a room-to-room check for poisonous products and to keep them out of a child's reach and sight. Cleaners, bleaches and disinfectants should be left in their original containers on the upper shelves of the kitchen closet and drugs and medicines should if possible be kept under lock and key.

Secrets of a Model

I've always had a secret urge to model something glamorous and custom made for me. But I do most of my modeling in a household, demonstrating household appliances.

Although Hank said today's job was an exciting one, I doubted it. "After all," I told my photographer-husband, "appliances are pretty standardized." Hank just smiled.

Now I know why. This afternoon I discovered a range can be just as individual as a Dior creation. I posed with an RCA Whirlpool built-in oven—installed to fit my height. When a gal's as tall as I am, baking usually means bending. But this new oven is designed for "stand-up" use. The controls are at eye-level too!

Between pictures, I examined the oven clock control that starts and stops cooking automatically at the times you select. I had visions of putting dinner in the oven before we left for a job—and coming home to a piping-hot, ready to eat meal.

One of the Whirlpool-Seeger executives who was on the set told me that the oven and the separate surface cooking unit are available in both gas and electric models. He said they are finished in stainless steel, antique copper or white porcelain enamel. He added that the units can be installed almost anywhere a housewife wants them.

Then he nudged Hank. Said a model housewife like me really deserved a model kitchen. But Hank was already sold.

"Bet you could cook a meal for 30 men in that oven," he murmured.

Maybe I could, but I'll start with a small roast for two.

Small Colleges Better for Students, Happier for Teachers, Says Educator

The concern of small colleges with the individual makes them better for students and happier for teachers than big impersonal universities, writes Dr. D. Elton Trueblood in an article, "Why I Chose a Small College," in September Reader's Digest. He reports the small college has undergone a remarkable rebirth in the last ten years.

Dr. Trueblood, now professor of philosophy at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., earlier was on the faculties of Stanford and Harvard. Scientists, business leaders, and persons with distinction enough for Who's Who in America, Dr. Trueblood writes, are produced by small colleges out of all proportion to their size and resources.

"Of the first 50 institutions in America, judged by the scientific eminence of their graduates," reports Dr. Trueblood, "39 are small, privately supported colleges."

Of the 106 board chairmen and presidents of America's 66 billion-dollar companies 62.3 per cent are graduates of such independent institutions.

Roger M. Blough, chairman of the U. S. Steel Corp., for example, is a graduate of Susquehanna University; Eugene G. Grace, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corp., of Lehigh University; Harlow H. Currier, president of General Motors, of Ferris Institute; Robert E. Wilson, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, of Wooster College; Ralph J. Cordner, president of General Electric, of Whitman College; John J. McCloy, chairman of the Chase-Manhattan Bank, of Amherst College.

Dr. Trueblood lists three virtues in small college life. "First," he says, "is the affectionate, abiding concern for the individual. . . . In a university with 10,000 or 15,000 students, a student can go through four years and until his commencement never even see, much less meet, its president. The professor in the small school has students in numbers small enough so that each, for him, is a person in whose welfare he can take an intimate interest."

"The second fact which works to the great advantage of the student is this: every student has the opportunity to find and engage in those activities which will develop his maximum capacities. In a student body of many thousands an individual is often lost in the anonymous mass. His role in the university's extracurricular activities is not that of participant but of spectator."

"The third and to me the most important advantage of the small college is its concern, rooted in religion, for character development. . . . I chose a small college because I wanted to be part of a life where this character-developing influence is pervasive, where it is shared by all the students and promoted not only by professors of Bible and religion but quite as much by men in chemistry, biology and psychology."

Nearly half of the small colleges operated in the red last year, but Dr. Trueblood reports an upswing in alumni giving and a rallying of industry and business to the small college's support.

"Many must have addition buildings and facilities," writes Dr. Trueblood. "But now the prospects are vastly improved as more and more Americans recognize what the small college contributes and how essential it is to strengthen and extend its contribution."

Farmers Receive $3.72 For 3.5 Test Milk Delivered at Chicago in July

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Dairy farmers who shipped milk to the Chicago market during July will receive 28 cents a hundred more for their milk than in July, 1955, according to Harry L. Edwards, Director of Sales for Pure Milk Association. He said also the price to be paid to farmers for July-delivered milk is six cents a hundred more than they received in June.

The Federal Milk Market Administrator in Chicago announced a blend price of $3.72 for milk testing 3.5 per cent butterfat, delivered to plants in the 70-mile zone. This figure is at about eight cents per quart to the farmer in the specified area.

Edwards said July was the fifteenth consecutive month in which the price paid to farmers for their milk was above the corresponding month of the previous year. It also was the fourth consecutive month in which there were substantial gains in farmers' prices over the same months of 1955 due to bargaining achievements by PMA in April. These bargaining gains were incorporated in the Federal Milk Marketing Order for Chicago so that all Order 41 milk producers benefited.

The gains amounted to 23 cents a hundred for the last half of April or about 11 cents a hundred for the entire month; 41 cents for May; 36 cents for June; and the 28 cents for July.

The Cooperative's Sales Director added that the Milk Market Administrator's Office has estimated an August blend price of $3.85 at the 70-mile zone. If realized, this price would be eight cents a hundred more than the August, 1955, blend price.

Lake County Residents Purchased $534,550 Series E Bonds in July

Lake County residents purchased a total of $534,550 in Series E and H United States Savings Bonds in July, 1956, according to word from the Treasury Department received by James E. Brown of Waukegan and Philip L. Speidel of Lake Forest, volunteer Savings Bonds county co-chairmen.

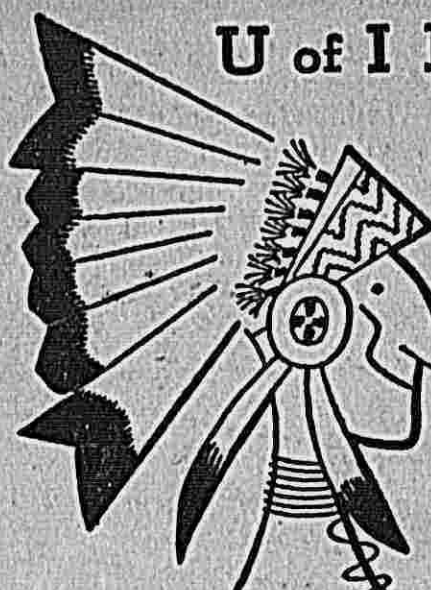

Total sales in the state of Illinois in both Series for the month were $41,075,965; this amount represents 9.3 per cent of total sales in the nation, which amounted to $442,757,000.

Illinois has attained 58.3 per cent of its annual quota of $509,800,000 in the first seven months of the year.

Offer Two Solutions To Curb America's Rising Traffic Toll

In an effort to halt the nation's headlong rush into the most calamitous traffic toll of all time by the end of 1956, the National Committee On Uniform Traffic Laws and Ordinances, is calling on state legislatures throughout the country to establish absolute maximum speed limits and give law enforcement officers more sweeping on-the-spot arrest powers.

This action was taken at a meeting of the Committee in Chicago and was announced recently by Thomas N. Boate, a committee member and Accident Prevention Department manager of the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies.

The committee's approval of these changes in the Uniform Traffic Code coincided with the National Safety Council's announcement that traffic fatalities in the nation have consistently increased for the sixteenth consecutive month and are threatening to reach an all-time high of 42,000 deaths for 1956.

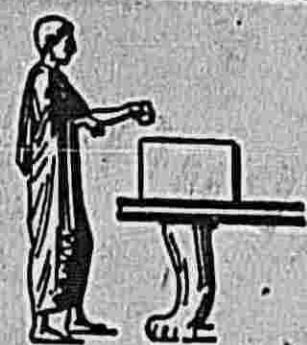

The first of the two major changes calls for the abandonment of prima facie speed laws in favor of absolute limits and would greatly simplify enforcement of speed laws. Under the newly recommended system, any motorist exceeding the maximum speed established by law would be guilty of a traffic violation. Under the prima facie law, a motorist charged with speeding can not be judged guilty of a violation unless the arresting officer is able to prove that, under the conditions existing at the time of the arrest, such speed was unsafe.

At the present time, 19 states have established maximum speed limits, 21 have prima facie limits and eight have limits, designated only as "reasonable and prudent." To "facilitate enforcement, increase the safety of the highways and bring about uniformity of traffic laws," the committee voted to urge all states to adopt absolute limits. It further recommended that under the most favorable circumstances, the maximum speed should not exceed 60 miles an hour in rural areas or 30 miles an hour in built-up areas, with downward zoning to meet local conditions.

The second major change recommends broadening the authority of enforcement officers to allow them to make on-the-spot arrests of persons who are reasonably believed to have committed such violations as reckless driving, negligent homicide, driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs, leaving the scene of an accident, refusing to give information, or refusing to aid accident victims.

Under most existing systems, these offenses are considered misdemeanors rather than felonies. Under the common law rule, an officer can make an on-the-spot arrest of a felony suspect, but must get a court-issued warrant for the arrest of a person suspected of committing a misdemeanor. The time lapse in this system often allows suspects to sober up (if drunk) or to leave the scene of the accident. If the suspect is from out of state, he can often escape trial completely by returning to his home before a warrant can be issued.

Notable Firsts In History

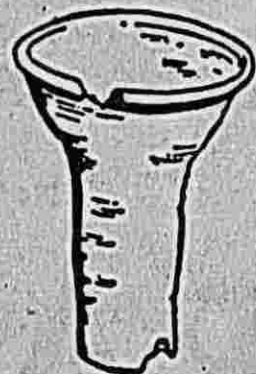

FIRST BALLOT

The first known ballots were made of clay, citizens of Athens marked them in secret votes for or against the exile of persons charged with treason. In this country voting is the duty of every citizen. Make sure you register so you can vote in November.

FIRST ADVERTISEMENT

Archeologist digging in the ruins of the great temple of Tanis at Carthage, Africa, found an early clay lamp. A message had been painstakingly inscribed on the bottom of this lamp. When the archeologists had deciphered it, they had discovered the world's first known ad: "Buy our Lamps."

FIRST HOUSE SEWER

The earliest sewer pipe was constructed by knocking the ends out of pottery jars and joining them in a continuous line. Over 5000 years ago, plumbers in the Middle East began using clay pipe fashioned for sewers. Some of these old sewers are still intact today.

CLAY HAS BEEN USED BY MAN SINCE TIME BEGAN.

Shown above are some notable firsts reported by the Sanitary Engineering Committee of the National Clay Pipe Manufacturers Association. Because clay pipe is ageless and resists all acids and caustic wastes, it is recognized as the one material that provides all the qualities necessary to satisfy the exacting demands of sanitary structures.

Modern sanitary systems constructed of clay pipe play an everyday role as guardian of the health of the people. Clay pipe positively cannot be harmed by sewage. It's strong and rigid, can't sag out of round. Roots cannot pierce its dense, rock-like walls.

Clay pipe lines are one of the city's life-lines carrying away deadly wastes. Public health is America's first line of defense.

The new law allowing officers to make on-the-spot arrests of persons charged with misdemeanors, traffic safety leaders pointed out, would thus make possible the apprehension of many violators who now frequently escape prosecution. This system is already in effect in several parts of the nation.

Commenting on the important new revisions, Mr. Boate said: "Our traffic problem is bolting away at headlong speed. Already we are approaching 10,000,000 accidents a year at a cost of some $5 billion, 1,500,000 injuries and 42,000 deaths. The strengthening of traffic laws must no longer be delayed if we are to halt this trend. It is clearly evident that the broadening of police arrest powers and the tightening of speed laws are at the very top of our most urgent needs. I am sure that every one, including the great majority of motorists, hopes the state legislatures will bring their laws in line with these modern needs as recommended in the Uniform Traffic Code."

Demolition of Old Navy Building Gives Practice For Nearby Fire Depts.

The Navy at Great Lakes has come up with an inexpensive and unique plan to demolish an average, useless building at the Naval Training Center.

In order to realize the most benefit from its razing, the Navy has invited all Lake County and Northeastern Illinois Fire Chief associations to take part in the demolition which will serve as a fire control research project. This method of destruction, the Navy believes, will offer area fire departments unusual opportunities to gain experience with fires not ordinarily available to small organizations. Fifteen separate fires of varying degrees of intensity and size have been planned.

The Research project, to be divided into two separate phases, will be conducted on the week ends of Sept. 29 and 30, during the fireman's off-duty periods. Naval training center Fire Chief LeRoy H. Ellis will conduct and coordinate the demolition project, the Navy announced.

The building, a 200-foot, two story stucco structure is one of the oldest auxiliary buildings at the center. The Navy said it has served various purposes, but has outlived its usefulness and is beyond a state which would be economical to repair.

Chief Ellis, fire chief here since August 1953, says the building with its dividing firewall and elevator and open stairways, will provide many problems to challenge fire fighting techniques. The project will also afford basement type fire-fighting training, he says.

Navy officials are expecting almost every type of fire apparatus and appliance to be brought into play at some times or another during the project but plans are to give special emphasis to fog nozzle techniques.

All phases of training purposes, and several national fire protection organizations are expected to witness the event to record technical data and results. Premier tours are also being planned in interim to familiarize fire officers with the building.

Official Explains the Child-Labor Law as It Applies to Farmers

Chicago, Ill.—When the new Fall school term opens in September, every commercial farmer and grower whose products move in interstate commerce directly or indirectly, will become subject to the child-labor provisions of the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act.

The complete change in the legal status of employment of children in agriculture the day local schools open was explained here today by Mr. Duane A. Wendele, Regional Director of the U. S. Labor Department's Wage and Hour division in Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

"This law exempts growers of agricultural and horticultural products from its $1.00 minimum wage and overtime provisions, but it specifically prohibits employment of children under 16 years of age in agricultural occupations during hours school is in session in the school district in which they reside while working," Mr. Wendele said.

"In other words, children of any age may be employed on the farm by the grower in the planting, cultivating, harvesting or handling of agricultural products during vacation periods, on week-ends and before and after school. The grower may use his own children in agricultural work at any time and at any age on his own farm.

"Please note the fact that these are federal restrictions. Each of the 48 states now has a child-labor law of its own. Growers should consult with state officers, local school attendance officials or study these laws to determine their provisions. When the state child-labor standards are higher than those of the federal law, the state law should be observed.

"The federal regulation requires that each grower subject to it have on file for each employee under 18 a record showing his full name, date of birth, the home address and the local address if the minors are employed on days when school is in session."

Primary purposes of both federal and state child-labor laws, according to Mr. Wendele, are the protection of our children from exploitation and to encourage them to stay in school and obtain the education that will make them better citizens of tomorrow.

Here are the steps Mr. Wendele said the commercial grower should take to protect himself from unintentional violations:

1. Learn the requirements of both state and federal child-labor laws.
2. Do not employ or permit children under 16 to work in or about the farm or hothouse during hours school is in session.
3. Make sure the youth is of employable age and keep the required records for at least three years.

Mr. Wendele emphasized that the federal law applies to all children, whether they reside in the area or are members of migrant worker families. Also that the grower himself is held liable for any violations even though under-age children were hired and paid by a labor contractor or processor or

New Chemical on Market Kills Canada Thistles

A new chemical spells doom for Canada thistle, worst weed pest of the Central States. American Cyanamid Company is releasing the product, called Amino Triazole Weed-killer, on the basis of extensive testing at agricultural colleges in states where Canada thistle is a serious problem.

In extensive research and field use, amino triazole has given 90 per cent or better control of the troublesome pest with one spray application. In addition to its accepted use in early season, agricultural experts recommend its use after harvest. Spot treatment in the spring will kill any plant which might survive the fall application.

Concerning the effectiveness of the new chemical, C. J. Willard, Professor of Agronomy at Ohio State University, reported recently in Crops and Soils magazine, "If amino triazole continues to live up to its early performance, farmers throughout the northern states and southern Canada are assured of a potent 'one-shot' weapon in their battle with one of the old sore spots of hayfields and meadows."

Amino triazole kills by interfering with the plant's manufacture of chlorophyll. Gradual action permits a complete kill of root systems as well as foliage. It is also effective against a number of hard-to-kill perennial weeds including quack grass, poison ivy, poison oak, cat-tails and tules.

Amino triazole should not be applied directly to crops. Spring applications are usually made to actively growing weeds about two weeks before plowing and planting. Summer and fall applications should be preceded by mowing or plowing under thistle plants. The plants should be allowed to regrow to a height of four to ten inches before spraying, since the chemical is most effective on actively growing plants. If cultural practices are necessary, they should be delayed for at least two weeks before frost is expected.

Detailed information and recommendations on the use of the new product can be obtained from agricultural colleges, county agents, or directly from American Cyanamid Division, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City.

Dummy Pills Sometimes Relieve Real Illnesses

Dummy pills—placebos as the doctors call them—in "an astonishingly large percentage of cases" relieve headache, seasickness, angina pectoris pains and discomfort following operations, writes J. D. Ratcliff in a September Reader's Digest article titled, "Medicine's Humble Humbug."

Some doctors use placebos to break people of the sleeping-pill habit.

The placebo may be a brightly colored pill of inactive milk sugar, a capsule of starch or a shot of ineffective salt water. It "cures," the writer explains, because most of us are highly suggestible and our mental attitude plays a powerful role in sickness.

The placebo was the stalwart friend of the harassed physician of a generation or so ago, when effective drugs were few. As scientific medicine advanced the placebo fell into disrepute except as a "control" against which the effectiveness of a real pill could be measured. But physicians making these tests noticed that the worthless pills made up to look like the real ones cured the control patients surprisingly often and worked against a wide variety of ailments. Harvard medical researchers studying the reaction of surgical patients to placebos were astounded to find that they were most effective when the pain was greatest.

The Harvard students found that there was no difference in intelligence or sex between those who reacted to placebos and those who did not. "But, in general, reactors appeared to be more friendly, more outgoing, more optimistic," Mr. Ratcliff writes. "They expected the placebo to give them relief—and it did."

"Should you feel gyped if you learn that your physician has prescribed a placebo, and you have paid, say $2 to have the prescription filled?" Mr. Ratcliff asks. "Certainly not. The placebo has an excellent chance of doing good for beyond its cost." Placebos can be tried while the doctor is waiting for diagnostic tests or when he is baffled by the complaints or when no effective treatment is possible.

One authority quoted by Mr. Ratcliff thinks that the illegibility of prescriptions and the use of high-sounding names for drugs serve a useful purpose in preserving the secret of the placebo from the patient. Many doctors find vile-tasting and vividly colored tinctures particularly impressive.

Drowning Saturday Morning
Casper Saboe, 55, of 2146 Lincoln Ave., Chicago, was drowned in Petite lake when the boat in which he and two others were riding capsized early Saturday morning.

George F. Mazzuca, 38, of Circle Dr., was aroused by the barking of his dog, and heard the screams of the other two accident victims, Maxine Saboe, 29, and a friend, Mayo E. DeCamp, 52, of Chicago and through the fog directed them to shore.

Miss Saboe said that she and the two men were fishing in a rented rowboat in Spring Lake channel about 2:30 a. m. when the boat capsized. She said she tried to save her father but he struggled so that she had to let him go.

While a neighbor of the Mazzucas, Karl Hawkins, 38, and Kenneth Mazzuca, 15, rowed a boat in the direction of the voices, Mr. Maz-

BE ALERT!

YOUR CHILDREN ARE GOING

Back to School

DRIVE CAREFULLY!

School Time is Safe Driving Time --
The Child You Save May Be Your Own!

STOP and WAIT when school busses are taking on or discharging passengers.

KEEP ALERT for children walking to school in the city or on country roads.

More and more children are on the streets again—some of them going to school for the first time. Children will be crossing the streets, walking along country roads, waiting for school busses. Children are sometimes unpredictable, and it is up to drivers to stay alert and in full command of their vehicles in case an emergency arises. PLEASE drive extra carefully. Watch for children at crossings and on the streets. Give the right of way to school busses. Be alert. The children may not see you—be sure you see them!

FOLLOW THESE RULES FOR SAFE DRIVING

- Be doubly careful near schools or where children play. Children don't realize the danger and may take chances. That's why you, the driver, must take extra care.
- Keep your car in top mechanical condition. Use chains when roads are slippery.
- Slow down. Speed is dangerous at any time—doubly dangerous when visibility is cut by rain, fog, or darkness.
- Obey traffic laws. Know the traffic laws wherever you travel and don't break them.
- Keep lights and windshield wipers in good condition during rainy or snowy weather. You have to see danger to avoid it.
- If you drive, don't drink—if you drink, don't drive. Remember, death takes no holiday.
- Be a courteous driver. Yield right-of-way, even when it should be yours. It's better to stay alive than to be dead right.

FOR YOUR CHILDREN'S SAKE, THIS PAGE WAS SPONSORED BY THE FOLLOWING:

GIVE RIGHT-OF-WAY to children at cross-walks. Be sure they arrive safely.

In the sacred memory of my beloved wife Pearl M. Spiziri who passed away three years ago:

Safely sleeping in Ascension Cemetery lies the one I loved so dear. I have lost my life's companion, I travel the world alone. God only knows how I miss you darling, as I walk the road alone. You have left a beautiful memory and a sorrow too great to be told, but to me who loved and lost you, your memory will never grow old.

Placid Possum Has Survived For Generations

WASHINGTON—The placid possum, one of nature's unassuming mammals, rates a number of distinctions—among them the height of his family tree.

Possum ancestors waddled the earth millions of years ago as far south as Patagonia. As North America's only marsupials, the inoffensive creatures have served and amused generations of man, while creating strange beliefs. One old legend credits the possum with fishing with its foot-long ratlike tail. Mexico's Aztecs brewed possum-tail broth as a cough remedy, used it to draw ailments from flesh and bone and to accelerate childbirth.

Beset by hawks, owls, foxes, bobcats and man, the possum has few defenses other than an odor sufficient to give attackers pause.

Like the bear and the eagle that contributed "bear hug" and "eagle-eyed" to the language, the possum's ability to feign death gives meaning to the expression "playing possum." Some experts think possums may actually swoon from fright. Others compare the exhibition to the rigid state of severe human mental cases.

The possum ranges across much of the United States and as far south as Patagonia. As North America's only marsupials, the inoffensive creatures have served and amused generations of man, while creating strange beliefs. One old legend credits the possum with fishing with its foot-long ratlike tail. Mexico's Aztecs brewed possum-tail broth as a cough remedy, used it to draw ailments from flesh and bone and to accelerate childbirth.

No Prospecting in 'Garden of Gods'

WASHINGTON—In the Garden of the Gods, scenery is more important than atomic energy.

Such, in effect, is the ruling of Colorado Springs officials who have declared the famous city-owned park "off limits" for would-be uranium prospectors. Any blasting, it was felt, might threaten the park's weird limestone formations particularly its "Balanced Rock."

The Garden of the Gods, near Pike's Peak, has been a tourist attraction for decades. As early as 1886, when only one National Park—Yellowstone—had been set up, Congress considered a bill to make the site a public recreation and sightseeing area.

The name "Garden of the Gods" came into use in 1859, soon after the discovery of gold in the vicinity. A couple of traders, seeking a place to establish a trading post on the road to the gold fields, came upon the natural gateway leading into the fantastic rock-strewn region. Here, one of them remarked, would be a place for gods to assemble, "a garden of the gods"—and the name stuck.

Surgery Held Safe For Polio Patients

CHICAGO—Paralyzed polio victims who are dependent on mechanical respirators may undergo "practically any" surgical procedure with little more risk than the normal individual, provided they receive special care and preparation.

Three Michigan physicians reported recently on 17 paralyzed patients who safely underwent various types of surgery. None developed any respiratory complications, which might have been expected in such a group, the doctors said.

The 17 patients ranged in age from 16 to 35 years, and underwent a total of 21 operations, fourteen major and eight minor operations.

Psychological preparation is important in such cases, they said. The paralyzed patient must be reassured that his breathing will not stop during surgery and that others have undergone the operation successfully. He should be accompanied to the operating room by someone he knows and trusts.

Growing Old Also Concerned Ancestors

LOS ANGELES—Research at the University of California, Los Angeles, has thrown new light on how ancient peoples viewed the physical and mental process of growing old.

Senior citizens of Rome were revered and obeyed, largely because it could be disastrous to do otherwise. A Roman father had absolute power over every member of his household. A wayward son could be murdered or sold into slavery if he displeased his father.

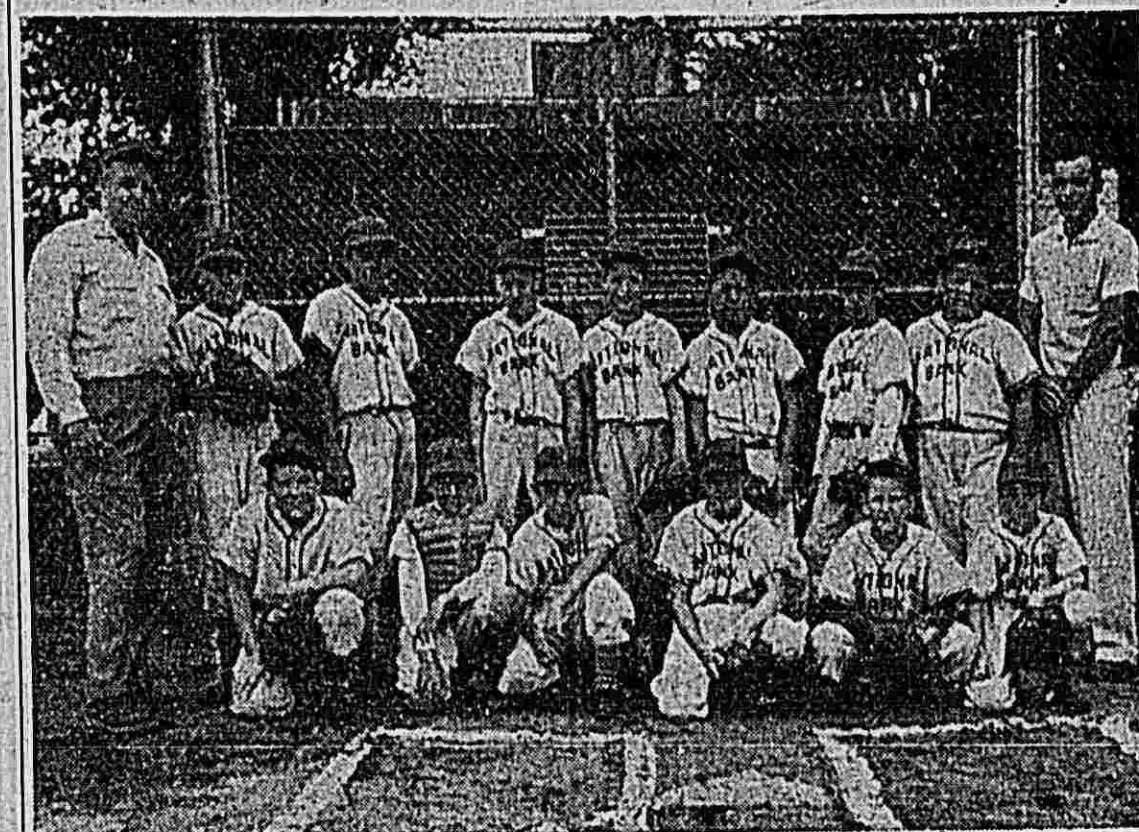

The Greeks' view of old age was more like our own. They recognized the physical ills inherent in long life and accepted them, if somewhat grudgingly. It was believed that if a man continued to read all his life, his mind would not decay.

Plenty of Soil
NEWTON, Iowa—John Wilson, County conservationist, built a new home in Newton and was facing the problem of getting good topsoil for his yard. High winds had moved some of Iowa's best topsoil into roadside ditches, so Wilson easily gathered all he needed.

"Ever had an accident?" a city fellow asked O' Hannibal the other day.

"Nope."

"Never had an accident in your life?"

"Nope. A rattler bit me once, though."

"Well, don't you call that an accident?"

"Nope," O' Hannibal said. "He bit me on purpose!"

As most fellows already know, the market for pulpwood is growing every year, as the demand for newspapers, magazines, books, cartons and wrappings grows. In fact, the average man in this country needs, directly or indirectly, about 350 pounds of paper and paperboard a year. And that means there's more and more reason for tree farmers — like my neighbor Silas — to grow pulpwood.

Less than 50 years ago, I was telling Silas the other day, the pulpwood mills used only a few kinds of wood — such as spruce, poplar and maple. But today they need ten times as much pulp, and have many new uses for their products, so the list of woods now includes ash, basswood, beech, birch, cherry, elm, gum, hemlock, hickory, maple, pine, poplar, sycamore — in fact, almost any kind! Of course, no single mill uses every kind of wood — so it's best to check your local mills for their requirements!

What's more, the pulp mills accept smaller trees than the lumber mills do — and this means a tree farmer, by careful selection of his trees, can find a market for his whole crop! And he won't lose as much wood when he cuts the defects out of his logs, either — because pulp mills generally use five-foot logs, as opposed to the twelve- or sixteen-foot lengths required for lumber. In many cases, pulpwood pays better than other cash crops a farmer grows.

The future for pulpwood looks bright, the experts say. They list four main reasons for this fact: 1) Better protection of our woodlands from fire and grazing. 2) Extension of roads into isolated sections, and better trucks and other equipment that reduce the labor requirements. 3) Better cutting techniques—leaving a good growing stock of young lumber after each cut. 4) Better use of wood by the mills — which are always looking for ways to use those trees that are plentiful but in little demand for sawmill use.

Huge Locomotive Poses Big Problem For Ford Museum

DEARBORN, Mich.—Because locomotives, like automobiles, have grown in size over the years, the Henry Ford Museum found itself facing a big problem.

Some automobile owners are having to squeeze their present-day cars into garages built only a few years ago. It took the museum a longer time to be caught with the same problem.

Nine locomotives have been handled in the past with ease. Parked inside the museum on two parallel tracks, they have been pushed in and out of the 11-acre museum grounds as the occasion demanded.

The problem came in the form of a gift from the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway—a huge Allegheny type locomotive, one of the largest ever built. Constructed in 1941, and now retired, it was among the last steam locomotives used by the completely dieselized C. & O. Locomotive and tender weigh nearly 600 tons and are more than 125 feet in length.

But weight and length weren't the problem. The rails rest upon concrete pillars two feet wide, reinforced with steel. C&O experts say the floor will support easily the locomotive's weight and the block-long tracks could accommodate several this length.

Width and height, however, were different. Museum officials found that by removing the cab and upper portions the locomotive would barely clear the doorway which is 11 feet 7 inches wide and 15 feet 8 inches high.

Once inside, the job was comparatively simple. A diesel pushed the locomotive to a head position on one of the tracks and it'll stay there. The high, 28-foot ceiling permits complete restoration.

20-20 Vision May Not Be Perfect

NEW YORK—Time was when the average person was perfectly satisfied if told that he had 20/20 vision. That was supposed to be the last word in perfection. And a good many people still believe it is.

Unfortunately, the truth is not so simple. A 20/20 verdict only means the patient can see at a distance of 20 feet what normal vision sees at that distance—that he has sharp eyesight when looking at distant objects, in other words. But there are a number of other factors involved in good seeing, such as acuity for reading and other close-up tasks, teamwork between the two eyes, side vision, and dark adaptation.

In a large proportion of the seeing problems encountered today—especially those associated with reading difficulty—20/20 vision exists along with definite trouble. Out of 100,000 Texas schoolchildren recently analyzed, 53.4 per cent were found to have 20/20 vision and yet to be lacking in ability to use both eyes properly.

Mighty Grizzly Bear In Need of Protection

WASHINGTON—The mighty grizzly bear, once the terror of both man and beast, is today himself in great need of protection.

Scarcely heard of until 1807 when Lewis and Clark returned from their expedition to the Pacific, King Grizzly reigned throughout the West for many years. Indians, armed only with bows and arrows, rarely challenged his supremacy. Such was the Indians' awe of the beasts than any early frontiersman who felled a grizzly wore its claws around his neck as a badge of unexcelled courage.

As guns improved and the price of pelts increased, however, killing bears became commonplace. Today, they are nearly extinct in this country.

Outside Alaska, the animal's last stronghold, only about 700 remain in the United States—mainly in Glacier and Yellowstone National Parks. The bears are still legal game in Montana and Wyoming beyond the parks. But in Colorado, Idaho and Washington, the only other states reporting grizzlies, they are protected.

Dynamite Removed From Community Hall

SCIO, Ore.—Local residents who have made use of Bohemian Hall here would not have danced so enthusiastically or for so long, or run, so hard in athletic contests had they had any idea what was under the floor.

A case of dynamite, enough to blow up the building, was removed recently.

It was apparently placed there 12 years ago after a Scio boy lost a hand in an explosion.

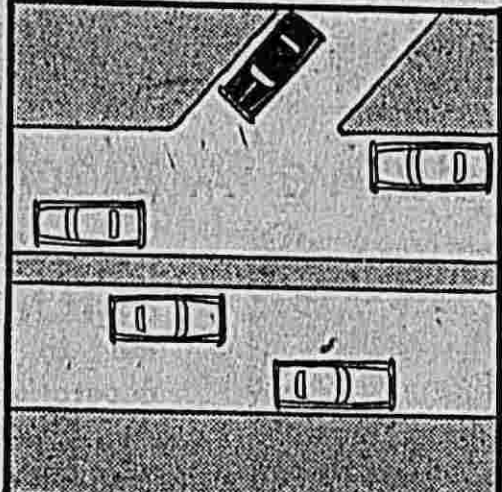

Traffic Jam
NEW YORK—A global survey shows that there were some 94,980 cars, trucks and buses on the world's highways at the start of this year. This is 7.8 per cent more than at the beginning of 1955. The survey indicates there are 2.84 persons for every motor vehicle in the United States.

Tips on Traffic Safety

By
CHARLES F. CARPENTIER
Secretary of State

Many Illinois motorists have occasion to travel over the some 300 miles of divided highways in this state. The motorist driving on such roads is presented with problems that do not usually occur while traveling over other types of highways.

At many points entrance to a divided highway is made without a requirement for a stop. But the motorist should keep in mind that while a sign for a stop has not been erected at this point he should exercise caution upon entering the highway. In some cases the driver's judgment will dictate that he come to a complete stop although the law does not require him to do so.

Upon preparing to enter a divided highway, a motorist should always be prepared to yield the right of way. In most instances signs have been posted directing the driver to do just that.

Once a motorist has driven his vehicle onto a divided highway he must be aware of two things. First, vehicles travel at a faster pace on these roads than on other highways. Secondly, he must resist the normal temptation of becoming overconfident behind the wheel because the hazard of head-on collisions is reduced and the overtaking of slow vehicles is made less difficult.

A copy of the completely new "Rules of the Road" booklet will be sent to you free upon request. Write to CHARLES F. CARPENTIER, Secretary of State, Springfield, Illinois.

Chicago Motor Club

Makes Labor Day

Statistics Prediction

Twenty-one persons—including an alarming number of pedestrians—will lose their lives in Illinois traffic accidents during the triple holiday over Labor Day, according to the Chicago Motor Club.

Over the same period, 12 persons will die in Indiana traffic accidents. The predictions are based on an analysis of current traffic volume and accident rates as well as other statistical material compiled over the past five years. These figures are contingent upon favorable weather conditions to attract motorists to the great outdoors for their last summer fling.

Of the 21 Illinois fatalities, 16 will occur downtown and five in Cook county, two of the latter in the City of Chicago.

Pedestrians, as usual, will account for 5 of every 9 persons killed in traffic mishaps, according to the motor club.

The traffic volume over the three-day holiday will likely reach the greatest proportions of any 1956 week-end, Chas. M. Hayes, Motor Club president, predicted, adding:

"Because of the large traffic volume expected together with the uncertainty of the weather over the three-day span, it is unlikely that an accurate prediction of the number of traffic accidents and injuries can be ascertained."

Hayes pointed out that since Labor Day week-end will mark finale to the summer season and will be the only three-day holiday in 1956, motorists will take full advantage of it, he declared.

With the expected increased traffic volume, Hayes warns pedestrians to be particularly vigilant of vehicular traffic. A driver doesn't stand much chance of avoiding a casualty when pedestrians suddenly walk in front of his car he pointed out.

Motorists, too, he asserted, should be cognizant of the extra traffic flow by curtailing speed, being patient on the road, and avoiding over-indulgence.

He Put His Farm Building To Work

Nebraska farmer Dan O'Connell saved $1,000 last year just through use of the repair shop section of his Quonset.

Multi-use of his steel farm building has paid many welcome dividends to Dan O'Connell, hog and grain raiser of Holdrege, Nebraska.

Dan, who is justly proud of the fine Phelps County hams he raises, has put his 32' x 72' Quonset to work for him by taking complete advantage of the building's versatility. Here are some of the uses to which he puts his Quonset: machinery and equipment storage, farm service and repair center, hog shelter, grain-drying, grain storage, feed, seed and hay storage, paint-spraying, etc.

But let Dan tell it in his own words: "I've found my Quonset a genius for saving money. I use it chiefly for storage of my machinery and as a repair shop, but I can convert a section of it quickly and do my own grain drying. 'When I have an over-run of hog production, I can find plenty of space for extra pens. And speaking of space, when emergencies come up there's more than enough room for several loads of hay and grain."

"Because the building is so adaptable to any type of storage, it's possible for me to take advantage of better prices and delivery services on feeds and seed."

"During slack season and stormy weather I'm able to do all my machine repairs and spraying in the shop section—in that department alone last year I saved about $1,000 for myself and my neighbors."

Additionally, Dan uses the shop section of his Quonset (made by the Stran-Steel Corporation) to make many things for his home. A further economy is the money saved by giving his machinery and equipment the best protection there is—steel shelter.

Museum of Science and Industry Cancer Exhibit Attracts Many Visitors

The man on the streets is rapidly demonstrating a much more alert curiosity about cancer and its possible effects on his own life, according to observers at Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry.

Not so long ago the very complete display of cancer exhibits in the medical science wing had a difficult time drawing its share of the throngs of visitors attracted by the great science museum. It had understandable difficulty competing with other such exhibits as the big working coal mine at the Museum through which thousands of pop-eyed spectators are conducted daily, or the hundred and one "do-it-yourself" type of exhibits that give such a thrill to those who constantly throng the electrical and communications parts of the Museum.

If latest available statistics mean anything, this previous indifference to the facts of life and this past tendency to shy away from serious presentations like the cancer exhibit are undergoing a big change. Latest reports on visitors to the Museum, and covering July, show that where twelve months earlier only one out of every 10 visitors to the lake front institution spent any time in looking over the cancer display, the figure for the month recently ended was one out of every six. Actually, 50,763 visitors studied the cancer exhibit during July.

An interesting sidelight to this changing attitude among the public is that those in hospitals and other medical professions are also using the exhibit as part of their extra-curricular program. Among the latest to view it was a large group of trainees from the School of Nursing at Detroit; while another delegation of nurses recently checked in from the Chicago Lying-In-Hospital.

The Cancer exhibit, most outstanding in its field in the country, is presented by the Illinois Division of the American Cancer Society as a public service. It was produced by the University of Illinois College of Medicine.

New Weapon Against Flies

A new weapon, demonstrated here, has been added to the housewives' and farmers' arsenal to combat the costly nuisance of the common fly.

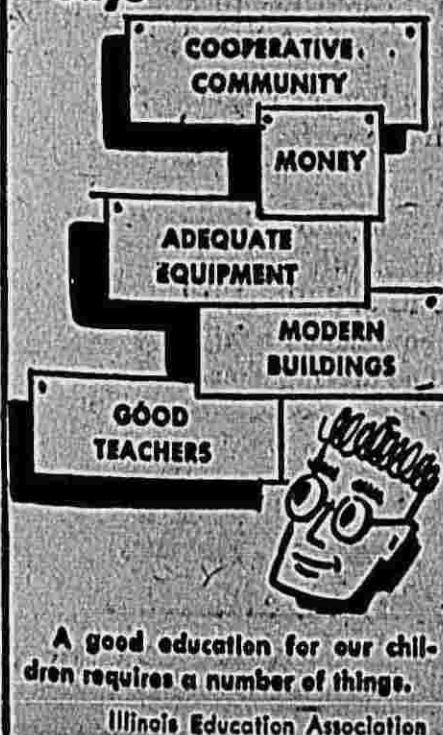

The new fly killer is not only deadly effective against both resistant and non-resistant strains, but is versatile and economical to use. Just the 1 pound canister can kill from two to four million flies and provide up to 100% kill within hours after a single application. Called Fatal-Fly, it is a product of Hess & Clark, Inc. of Ashland, Ohio, manufacturers of feed additives and animal health products.

This new discovery will be a boon for home and resort owners as well as for farmers. Approval has been granted for its use in picnic areas, dairy barns, poultry houses, stock pens, stables, kennels, and other places where flies are a menace.

The fly-killing ingredient in Fatal-Fly is Bayer L13/59 (Dipterex), the effective new discovery developed in a German lab.

This new product is odorless and will not stain. After initial control has been established in the treated area, one or two applications a week is usually enough to maintain good fly control. It can be used as a dry bait or it can be made into a water solution.

Tips on Traffic Safety

By CHARLES F. CARPENTIER
Secretary of State

The forthcoming Labor Day weekend marks the only big holiday weekend of this spring and summer. Memorial Day and the Fourth of July fell during the middle of the week this year and we were not faced with the likelihood of a tremendous slaughter on the highways as the country observed those two national holidays. The Labor Day weekend, however, is different.

If you plan to take to the highways on this occasion be sure that you are more alert than ever when behind a steering wheel. The roads will be packed with vehicles shuttling tourists and vacationists back and forth from the cities they have chosen for relaxation.

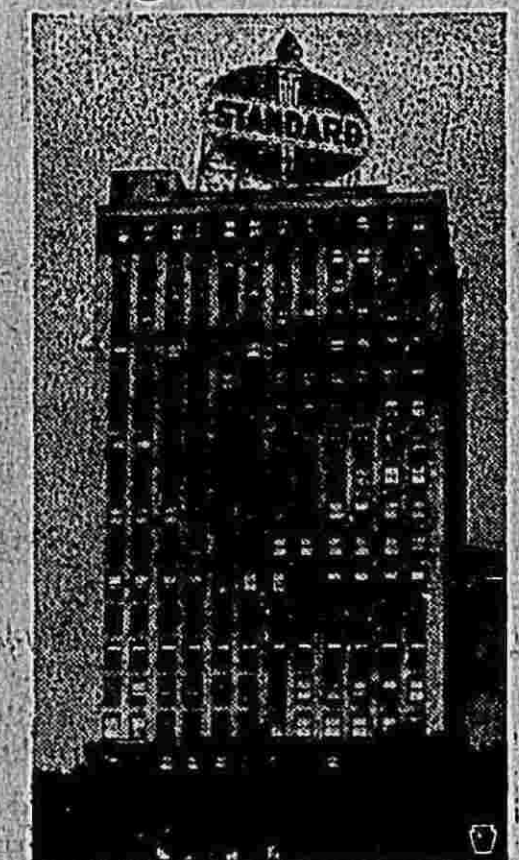

One hazard that we seemed to be plagued with more on holidays and when the roads are jammed is the driver who insists upon being in a big hurry to the extent that he will swing into the lane of the traffic going in the opposite direction in order to pass another vehicle without having a safe passing distance in front of him. There is no way to pick out this type of driver until it is too late. This one hazard on the highway is enough to remind us that we must be extra cautious when driving over the holiday weekend.

A copy of the completely new "Rules of the Road" booklet will be sent to you free upon request. Write to CHARLES F. CARPENTIER, Secretary of State, Springfield, Illinois.

Brightens Skyline

The largest louvered emblem sign of its kind now brightens the famous Chicago skyline on Michigan Avenue. It is a reproduction of the Standard Oil Company torch and oval emblem known throughout 15 states in mid-America. The 55-ton sign on the 20th floor level of the company's general office building at 910 South Michigan Ave. will be a familiar landmark to motorists driving in the Windy City. It is nearly eight stories high and is lighted by 12,172 feet of red, white, and blue neon tubes and 560 red light bulbs. It uses enough electricity to serve 66 average Chicago homes. The sign is 117 times larger than the emblem that identifies 14,000 Standard Oil dealer stations in the Midwest, and is visible more than two miles.

The pair displayed by this fisherman at Lake Waskesiu in Prince Albert National Park, Saskatchewan, weigh 9½ and 15½ pounds. Canada abounds in fine fishing waters.
